He congratulated Bodley that he had changed his course; but was a man who had flickered and faitered when your rights were at stake—a truer and better guide than others. Men before had gone to hear the jests and jokes of Jones, had had a good laugh, and found nothing to guide them, and nothing to reform the morality of the people. Before he would use language like Jones he would hide his head in shame.

Mr. Jones, replying, read a strong tem-erance utterance from Massey's record. Massey had said he was never in the ditch, just like the Fbarisce, while he would exclaim as the Publican, "Lord, have mercy upon me, a sinner." This was the first time that Major Kent had appeared before a Page-county audience, and the impression made was a very favorable one. The speech was a strong enunciation of time-honored Democratic principles. Major Kent was followed by Captain Woods, who is a great favorite with our people, having spoken here in previous campaigns, and rendered good service to the cause which he so earnessity champions. Captain Woods, in closing, called upon all to rally not only to the support of the State ticket, but the leet Mr. B. W. Captain Woods, in closing, called upon all to rally not only to the support of the State ticket, but to elect Mr. B. W. Petty, the Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates, a man of fine character and intelligence.

It was expected that General Rosser would be here to-day to address the People's party, but he did not put in an appearance, and their meeting was addressed by Mr. W. H. Keyser, candidate of the People's party for the Legislature. He had but a small crowd to hear him.

Both gentlemen were in fine trim and created great enthusiasm. thing bigger than that, he's that, and when he got into the Senate there'd be blood and hair, and the ground torn up. Massey ain't much account, nohow. There's no accounting for a man in his dotage.

The speaker was liberally applauded thoughout by the crowd.

MASSEY'S REJOINDER.

Mr. Massey, in rejoinder, said Jones had presented no argument. Knowing that the boys always go to the show to see the monkey, he had determined to show them the monkey, hut Jones had saved him the trouble, and had exhibited himself. Schols was head and shoulders above itodiey, so far as temperance was concerned. Echois had this advantage over Jones, he never regarded temperance as a sentiment, but practiced it all his life.

SEVERE ON UNCLE SAM.

Mr. Jones had referred to the speaker's training with such bad company. He thought failing mental powers might excuse a man for slips, but what excuse could Jones offer that in his youth and early manhood he had fallen into evil ways? Though Echois hasn't a wife I have one, I am 75 years old, and never yet have I wallowed in the ditch and fallen from grace in that way. Who then is the best adviser and guide? Others might indulge in merriment and amusing sayings. The yeomanry of Augusta would not be misled by such buffoonery. He congratulated Bodley that he had changed his course; but was a man who had flickered and faltered when your stebs.

The girl had been living with the Page family some time as cook, during which time their unlawful relations being disclosed, she quit their service. Page ordered her to return, and threatened to kill her on the spot if she did not come back. Saturday night Page went to the store, purchased a supply of cartridges, put in order his lantern, and on pretext of going hunting, went to the cabin of Caleb Fuque, the girl's uncle, at whose house she was staying. Demanding and obtaining entrance, he shot the girl dead and made his escape. The coroner's inquest was

THE GREATEST SECRECY.

Great secrecy was maintained to-day and to-night everywhere, except at the proceedings of the Court of General Sessions. Rumors crept out late in the afternoon, however, that warrants were out for officers of the bank. At police head-quarters absolutely nothing was told about it. It was reported that a meeting or conference in regard to Madison-Square Bank matters would be held in the evening at the Hoffman House. There was none, however, or if there were, it was hidden away from all eyes.

What did occur at the Hoffman House was the arrest of Director Ronaid T. McDonaid, who lives there. Detective Charles Crowley inquired for McDonaid, and finding him showed his warran' and asked him to take a ride in a cab to police headquarters. This Mr. McDonaid did. Ed. Mr. Stokes, who is a close friend of McDonaid's, hustled for half an hour, with the result that he found Judge Martine and induced him to hold court. District-Attorney Weeks was hastily communicated with and he obligingly came down to sessions.

WORLD'S FAIR, CHICAGO, October 23.—C. C. Shayne, the New York Furrier, received the highest awards for Fine Fur-Russian, Sable, Mink, Hudson Bay, Otter,

We yesterday visited the hide ware-house of B D. Chaikley & Co., on Cary street below Fitteenth. It is one of the largest and best-arranged places for the largest and best-arranged places for the business in the South, and equal to any in any of the northern States. We were surprised to see the large quantity of hides—hides by the thousands—both dry and green-salted; also, sheep-skins. They have several thousand on one floor. Calf and kip-skins, tallow, beeswax, etc., Upon inquiry we found that they receive shipments from every State of the South—as far as Texas. We are gratified that we are able to state that we have such a large and extensive an estabment of the kind in our city.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., October 23.-The Democrats of Kings county to-night be-gan their campaign with an immease mass-meeting in the Academy of Music. Late to-night Lawyer Untermeyer, counsel for the receivers, was seen. He stated positively that President Blaut had been arrested. He said that Blaut and Cashier Thompson were charged with forgery.

Mr. Untermeyer made a statement regarding the bank's affairs. He also said that other directors would be arrested charged with fraudulent treolysers. Mr. were present. The speakers ann

"The Committee of Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, now in session, is engaged in the preparation of a bill embodying the sentiments of the Democratic platform, and in the very near future, probably by December 1st, the measure will be formulated and ready tor the consideration of Congress. While disclaiming all authority to speak for that committee as to the details of their proposed measure, we may, nevertheless, say we anticipate some of its general fear ires. "First of all, it will be, a revenue bill.

INTEREST OF LABOR. 'In fixing the necessary tariff upon manufactured articles due consideration (Special telegram to the Dispatch.)

ROANGE, Va., October 23.—The grand jury to-day indicted H. F. Loving for felony, the charge being the embezzlement of $4,155.75 of money belonging to the First National Bank. $3,500 of which amount was taken between the lat of July and the 5th of October, 1893.

The trial of the Moir brothers, charged with assaulting B. L. Spindle with intent to kill, was continued in the Hustings Court to-day till the November term. The parties wanted to compromise the difficulty, but Judge Woods decided it was now in court and would have to be tried.

The suggestion has been made that where radical or material changes shall be adopted in fixing tariff duties on manufactured articles those portions of the measure should not take effect under the bill providing for their enactment until some definite date fixed in the law itself, in order to enable business-men to gradually adapt themselves to the new order of things and to regulate their offices are

Mrs. Biedler's Funeral Services.
(Special telegram to the Dispatch.)
LURAY, VA., October 23.—The funeral exercises attending the burial of Mrs. Sarah A. Biedler, widow of the late A. M. Biedler, of this county, were held in Broad-Street Baptist church, in this place, yesterday, and were conducted by Elder E. H. Burnam, her pastor. Mrs. Biedler died at the residence of her son, Mr. Andrew Biedler, in Washington, D. C. She had been in ill health for some time, and was a lady held in high esteem and a devoted Christian. She leaves a family of seven children—six sons and one daughter, the latter the wife of Rev. W. C. Bitting, D. D., of New York, Dr. Bitting was present and made a feeling address during the funeral ceremonies. The remains were interred in Green-Hill cemetery. The floral tributes were numerous and costly, and the linest-ever seen here on a similar occasion. CLOSURE.

Of his closure amendment to the Senate rules Mr. Hill said: "The amendment is now pending and may be brought forward at any moment, when forty-three senators are willing to give it their separators are willing to give it their separators. I decline > tion, and advocate a resolute effort to establish forever the sacred principle that a majority must be permitted to rule in the United States Senate, as well as in any other executive body in the country. No matter what may be the outcome of parties were divided upon the question, but, at the same time, the fillbustering was mainly done by the Republican senators from the silver States. The southern senators, to their credit be it said, while not wholly favoring the measure, in the main refrained from all dilatory tactics, and were never disposed to prevent a vote. A Democratic President discharges his duty fully; a Democratic House nobly met the Isue, but a Senate, politically almost tied, has thus far disappointed the country. That is a correct statement of the situation so far as the nation is concerned.

THE END AT HAND.
"It is impossible to predict at this hour what precise measure may finally meet the approval of Congress and the President. It is evident that the end of the great contest is very near.
I have expressed to you my individual preferences as to the course which I have advised, and which I desire to pursue to the end. If, by reason of the difficulties to which I have referred, and which may prove insurmountable, there must be a harmonization of views to accomplish any practical result, it may be permissible to suggest the wisdom of the adoption of that policy which teaches 'in essentials unity, in non-essentials liberty, and in all things charity.'

No matter what may be the outcome of the present struggle, the necessity of a change in the Senate rules has been abundantly demonstrated. I promise you that the effort for a change will be continued, trrespective of the fate of the present bill. The country may need relief in the future as well as now. Parliamentary obstruction—unreasonable and protected—should be a thing of the past.
